HONGKONG, OCTOBER 17TH, 1888.

In a few days more, probably, we shall have news of the decision of the French Chamber of Deputies with reference to the Franco-Chinese imbroglio. Whether it will be pacific or warlike remains to be seen, but in the face of the difficulties France has on hand in rar our other quarters it is hardly likely that she will rush into a war with China if to know the quantity of rain that has fallen at menced to escillate and vibrate considerably; at she can possibly accomplish her purposes in Angum and Tonquin without it. On the other hand, if she is forced into a war, there can be little doubt as to the ultimate issue: This China probably recognises, and neither country really wishes to fight. They have, Bowever, been on the verge of war for some months past, and at times hostilities have seemed inavitable, at others affairs have worn a more pacific appearance. It is as yet impossible to foretell the issue of the difference between the two, but at the moment things seem to wear a more peaceful aspect. When the French commenced their operations in Tonquin, the Black Flag band was supposed to number about three thousand, but as time went on their number increased, and the French latterly have demost part regularly drilled and properly equipped Chinese tremps, and that they num-Then comes the news that the Annamese Government has made arrangements with the Black Flags to cease their opposition ! the French, and almost at the same time the news is published that the enemy are desarting en masse and have abandoned all the positions between Hanoi and Sontai wa cont striking a blow. The explanation of this may possibly be, and most probably is, that the Chinese auxiliaries of the Black Flags have been withdrawn. The question then arises, what was the character of these auxiliaries, and whence were they drawn? If sentence passed on Logan, our correspondent they were, as der ribed, regularly drilled and properly equipped soldiers, they could only have been drawn from the Chinese troops massed on the frontier, and in that case it would seem that the Chinese have, as our Haiphong correspondent remarked some tima ago, been making war on France on the sly. > As will be seen by reference to our Police Court report, a Chinaman was brought before the court on a charge of attempting to set fire to a steamer at sea. From the evidence the accused would appear to have been under the influence of mental decaugement, either temporary or otherwise. Fortunately the captain was on the spot at the time and frustrated the attempt. Had the act taken place at another time when only the Chinese passengers were upon the "tween deaks the result would probably have been one of those most appalling of disasters, -the destruction of a ship by fire at sea, -and the tale of horror afterwards conveyed to the world by the survivors. The captain of the steamer answered the writ, through his counsel, that he could not produce Asam in Court, since to land a Chinaman would be an offence against the Federal laws. The Court held that this was a sufficient answer and dismissed the case. But Mr. Charles Meyers had seen some terrible things on board the steamer. TINGLISH AND CHINESI DICTIONARY. WITH THE PUNTI AND MANDARIN. PRONUNCIATION.

An Anglo-Chinese Dictionary, published at the Daily Press Office, Hongkong. For comprehensiveness and practical service this Work stands unrivalled. All the new words which the Chinese have of late years been compelled to coin to express the numerous objects in machinery, photography, telegraphy, and in science generally, which the rapid advance of foreign relations has imposed upon them, are here given in extenso. Each and every word is fully illustrated and explained, forming exercises for students of a most instructive nature. Both the Court and Punti pronunciations are given, the accents being carefully marked on the best principle hitherto attained. The typography displays the success of an attempt to make the Chinese and English type correspond in the size of body, thereby effecting a vast economy of space, achieving a clearness not previously THE TOURIST'S GUIDE. attained, and dispensing with those vast margins and vacant spaces which have heretofore charac-
